Growing up 'with' Subang Jaya

Hannah Yeoh was raised in Subang Jaya. She now resides in USJ with her husband. Having her entire family and close friends living here and in Bandar Sunway has made this neighbourhood truly her hometown.

Why now?

The increasingly disheartening developments in our country have caused her to reconsider her responsibility as a citizen in this nation. As a committed DAP member, she has now been given this opportunity to represent the people of her hometown.

Her conviction

"Complacency is deadly. I believe the mindset of our generation must change. We cannot accept the status quo. Constant complaining without any action makes us equally responsible for our current situation. Out of the 56 state seats in Selangor, only two are of the opposition. We need a stronger voice to provide effective check and balance to the government.

My family is of Chinese origin. My in-laws are Indians and we have friends of various cultures. As a woman in a mixed marriage, I am determined to stand up for multiculturalism and racial harmony. The children I will have must be known as only Malaysians. We must eliminate any form of discrimination. Any nation divided against herself will fall.

I make myself available to serve the people of Subang Jaya. I wish to be your voice in the State Assembly. If you see what I see and if you believe as I believe then I ask you to vote for change."
